

Contents

Philosophy, Theory, and Performance

Freddie Rokem	1	Philosophy and Performance: Walter Benjamin and Bertolt Brecht in Conversation about Franz Kafka
Eli Friedlander	23	Gesture: Benjamin and Brecht
Hit Ferber	35	Interruptions in Brecht and Benjamin: The Case of Brecht's Radio Plays
Joachim Fiebach	53	A German's Reading of Brecht in 2004: Gestus, Dialectic, Productivity
Eli Rozik	69	Defamiliarization in Theatre: A Rhetorical Device
Daphna Ben-Shaul	83	"In Disharmony with Itself": Dual Aspects of Illusion and Alienation in Brecht's Thought
Zvi Tauber	101	Good and Evil: Exemption from Moral Obligation in Brecht's Works
Gad Kaynar	113	"You're not a knife. You're a man, Simon Chachava": Brecht's Epic Technique as a Moral Gestus

Philosophy and Strategy

Shlomo Biderman	131	What Kafka Lost and Brecht Rediscovered
DrorHarari	145	Mother Courage and her (Tactical) Practice of Everyday War: an Alternative Reading in Six Parts

Millie Taylor	159	Layers of Representation: Instability in the Characterization of Jenny in The Rise and Fall of the City of Mahagonny by Brecht and Weill
Tom Lewy	177	Composers as Interpreters: The Case of And What Received the Soldier's Wife?
Shimon Levy	187	Notes on Post-Brechtian German Apocalyptic Plays
Contributors	207	